Technology Corner

Today's piano students are barraged with all sorts of exciting technology, from the iPod to computers, from video games to text messaging, even "old technology" like the television still competes with practice time. How can you make piano lessons more appealing to those kids that we lose to those activities? The answer may be adding some fun, exciting technology to the piano lesson. Capital Music Center specializes in helping teachers acquire and get comfortable using technology to enhance piano lessons. It doesn't change the way you teach, it just augments and enhances what you want to teach. There are many levels that you may incorporate technology in your piano studio. If you are interested in learning more, please come visit us and let us share some of the many benefits that technology can spice up your teaching and students practicing.
